URGES INCREASE OF AMERICAN
MERCHANT MARINE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Formulation of a definite policy relative to the construction of ships and their cost in order to increase the American merchant marine to meet our needs after the war, was urged during a discussion of the ship question today in the senate.

Senators Vandaman of Mississippi and Senator Weeks of Massachusetts, favoring a readjustment of construction now, declaring that unless this was done it would mean "the wrecking of millions of dollars has been concluded due to the building of carriers at war prices to be used in peace times."

The discussion was started by Senator Fletcher, chairman of the senate commerce committee. Charge that the seaman's act had driven the American flag from the Pacific ocean were branded as "utterly absurd" by Senator Fletcher.

"The necessity for ships now is almost as acute, for commercial uses, as it was for military purposes," Senator Fletcher said. He added that England is planning to build 2,000,000 tons annually and France 2,000,000 tons while the United States has the yards to build 6,000,000 tons annually.

Senator Jones of Washington, said if the United States kept pace with England and France in the construction of ships the American government would have to assume the same attitude toward private enterprises that those governments assume.

Next season the production of beets for the factory will be greatly increased, and the drainage of 3200 acres of beet lands in the recently organized drainage district insures additional beet land tributary to the factory for the future.
